

THIRD ESTATE ART'S

ANNUAL REPORT 2018

2018: A YEAR IN REVIEW

The beginning of 2019 is a great time to reflect on everything we've accomplished since Third Estate Art began last February. We are so grateful to everyone who's donated, volunteered, or ever sent a good thought our way. We can't wait to see what our next year brings!

And without further ado, here's our celebratory year-end list of everything we did in 2018:

1. We completed two large-scale outdoor installations (The Birds Project) spanning the entirety of Rogers Park to remember victims of gun violence.

2. We hosted free bird making workshops to help neighbors heal from gun violence and participate in the Birds Project.

3. We launched an installation at The Glenwood to call attention to the places and things we're losing to climate change.

3. We launched an installation at The Glenwood to call attention to the places and things we're losing to climate change.

2018: A YEAR IN REVIEW

4. We hosted a Pride-themed craft at the Artists of the Wall festival.

5. We painted faces at a "Night Out in the Parks" screening of Black Panther.

6. We built a haunted house with the Pottawattomie Park Advisory Council for neighborhood kids.

7. We painted masks with kids at Pottawattomie Park's Trunk or Treat.

8. We provided childcare and crafts at an early voting event to help more people get to the polls.

9. We worked with the Rogers Park Stitchers to install a community rack with handmade and new winter gear for folx out in the cold at the Pottawattomie Park Fieldhouse.

We also worked behind the scenes to write our bylaws and articles of incorporation, file for NFP status, file for 501(c)3 status, and build relationships with other neighborhood groups to make our work possible.

2018: FINANCIALS

In 2018, Third Estate Art had an income of $342.09. This included money from donations and supply reimbursements from the Pottawattomie Park Advisory Council.

Third Estate Art's total expenses came to $858.20. Expenses included web hosting fees, government filing fees, event-related expenses, and project supplies. No board member or officer of Third Estate Art is currently receiving payment for performance of duties.

One of our biggest goals for 2019 is to not only break even, but find a more sustainable longterm way of bringing art to the neighborhood we know and love. We're happy to report that we're already very close, and we should be a little ahead by our next annual report.

You can help, too. If you're able, we appreciate donations of any amount to help cover our operating costs. Since we've begun hosting our own salon events in 2019, we have started what we hope will become a model for paying artists and activists for their work. We also have all the usual administrative costs you'd expect--web hosting, printing, government tax and reporting fees--and we'll always need more art supplies for kids' events and our own community-based art projects.

Thanks for following along, and we're looking forward to seeing how much we grow in 2019!